something - and that doesn't happen often. Destiny and Faith need summer jobs and they soon get the most enjoyable job of all - cleaning a neighbour's attic! This isn't just any old attic as the attic is inside a haunted house! (No more exclamation marks!) They also become friends with the occupants, specifically a deaf boy called Dustin and we get to experience sign language - something all children should become familiar with. My slugs have now taken it up and become fairly proficient. There's even a page at the back listing the sign language alphabet. Just one thing, ghost... garlic? Very amusing! (You'll have to read it). Must buy!

Kurzbeschreibung It's summer! Destiny and Faith come up with a great idea to keep busy during the summer. They try to get a job! They end up cleaning a dusty, possibly haunted, old attic, running a PURPLE lemonade stand, and most importantly, making a great new friend. Dustin happens to be Deaf, and Destiny and Faith put their knowledge of American Sign Language to the test! But can it help them land a job? EXCERPT I can't believe we're doing this, Faith whispered from behind me. We were walking down our street in the dark. Tiny, how did you drag me into this? Shh! I hissed. The ghosts will hear us if you talk. Have I ever mentioned that I'm afraid of the dark? Faith asked me, nudging my shoulder. Only a bazillion times! And that's just tonight, I snapped, getting frustrated. If you're going to be a fraidy cat you might as well go home, and let me do this alone. No way, Faith said, standing tall. I'm not letting my baby sister walk around in dark haunted houses by herself. You're a saint, I said sarcastically. Obviously, I am. I'm putting aside my fears for you, aren't I? Sh! Did you hear that? I asked. Hear what? Faith tried to hide behind me. Never mind. I think it was just a stray cat or something. I turned my flashlight on and flicked it around, trying to check out the noise. You had a flashlight this whole time, and you're just now turning it on? Faith whined. I didn't want anyone to see us, I hissed at Faith. Stay here. What? No! Don't leave me here in the dark. Faith clung to my jacket. Just stay behind this bush, I instructed her. Fine, but if I see a ghost I'm leaving without you. I shrugged and started to head toward the house. You're taking the flashlight? Faith asked. I rolled my eyes, and I handed it to her. Thanks, she whispered. Now I'm going, I hissed. I walked slowly along the bushes and looked in Dustin's windows. There he was. Old Mr. Jenkins! Seeing him made me so nervous that I tripped over a twig, causing it to snap. Uh oh, I said.
