seriously what Jesus revealed about God? Well, that's exactly what Caleb Miller has done in his book 'Saving God: Freeing Abba from the Captivity of Religion'. So much of western theology starts with the premise of a divine judge sitting in a divine court room, having to balance out some legal problem - or worse sorting out his own inner conflict. But what Caleb has attempted to put forth here, is that we have put our own inner conflicts unto the face of God. And when he was faced with the revelation of Jesus' Abba through the reality of every day life as a dad, all the theologies that we can theorise up in our ivory towers of cold academia and empty religious talk began to crumble. Partly based on real life experiences of encounters with the Father's heart, this book is a theological reflection on how the revelation that God is Father by nature - as the ancient Trinitarian creeds confess - changes everything. No sacred cow remains unchallenged - be it free will, atonement theories, original sin or final judgment - and at the end one is being confronted with the fact that the Father Jesus came to reveal is the only True God and has nothing in common with the mythological god of our own making. I am looking forward to read more of Caleb in the near future...
